

GED GRAD DAY

Celebrate with us on May 16th #GEDGradDay

Who Should Celebrate?

GED graduates, aspiring GED graduates, friends, family, teachers, adult education centers.

Get Involved

Follow us on Facebook and Twitter — @GEDTesting
And Instagram — @My_GED

Post a picture and celebrate our graduates' hard work on May 16th using #GEDGradDay

We know graduates have overcome many excuses and hurdles to achieve their GED, and we want to celebrate their accomplishments. We're asking grads to post what excuse or hurdle they've overcome so they can inspire others to do the same. We've included printouts they can use or they can write their own.

Find out more details about GED Grad Day and how to get involved in our Facebook event:

<https://www.facebook.com/events/2337025559889226/>

Example Social Posts

 GED Testing Service - Home of the GED Program
April 1 at 6:34 PM · 🌐

I was too afraid. Too afraid to get started or fail the math section. But I overcame it and now I'm a GED graduate! #GEDGradDay #GradDaySweeps

  22 20 Comment 13 Shares

 Like  Comment  Share

 GED Testing Service - Home of the GED Program
April 1 at 6:34 PM · 🌐

It's hard studying for the GED when English is your second language, but I overcame it! #GEDGradDay #ISurvived

  57 25 Comment 10 Shares

 Like  Comment  Share

The following are printouts of obstacles that grads have overcome — use these for your social posts or feel free to write your own. Become an inspiration for others!

PUSH PAST THE EXCUSES

SINGLE PARENT

MATH WAS TOUGH

LEARNING ENGLISH

IT'S BEEN TOO LONG

TOO AFRAID

TOO OVERWHELMED

